Rapidly expanding customer, revenue base leading to key executive hires, continued funding, and move to larger Silicon Valley headquarters.

San Jose, CA – March 28, 2014 -- TapClicks, the digital presence company, announced today that rapid growth in sales, customers and revenues has propelled the company to move into larger headquarters with a growing staff now in place to support a booming list of agency and local-media clients.

The company is proud to announce its new headquarters in San Jose, CA, sharing the building with Apple Inc. in an iconic building in the heart of Silicon Valley.

The move was pressed in part by human resource growth: TapClicks rapidly-growing customer base has required management team expansion with the addition of key executives from SaaS technology and digital media companies.

“We continue to accelerate our growth to the point where we now have hundreds of digital agencies and media companies using our products, said Babak Hedayati, CEO of TapClicks.

TapClicks investors have responded favorably to the accelerating success by raising the overall funding of the company to a total of $4million. The continued investment is testament to investors’ satisfaction in the company’s progress. Proceeds are already being deployed to expand the existing engineering, sales and marketing teams to support and fuel the company’s growth.
